IT'S TIME TO BE COMPLIANT!

OSHA requires workplaces to have adequate first aid supplies readily available and adheres to ANSI standards for first aid kit content requirements. In 2015 ANSI updated the standards, with an effective date of June 17, 2016.

The 2015 ANSI update introduced two classes of first aid kits:

Class A kits contain contents designed for more common types of workplace injuries.

Class B kits contain a broader, larger quantity of supplies for more complex or high-risk environments.

In order to be ANSI-compliant, first aid kits must contain the following components:

FIRST AID SUPPLIES	MINIMUM QUANTITY CLASS A KITS	MINIMUM QUANTITY CLASS B KITS
Adhesive Bandage, 1" × 3"	16	50
Adhesive Tape, 2.5 yd (total)	1	2
Antibiotic Application, 1/57 oz	10	25
Antiseptic, 1/57 oz	10	50
Breathing Barrier	1	1
Burn Dressing (gel soaked), 4" × 4"	1	2
Burn Treatment, 1/32 oz	10	25
Cold Pack, 4" × 5"	1	2
Eye Covering (with means of attachment), 2.9 sq"	2	2
Eye/Skin Wash, 1 fl oz total	1	—
Eye/Skin Wash, 4 fl oz total	—	1
First Aid Guide	1	1
Hand Sanitizer, 1/32 oz	6	10
Medical Exam Gloves	2 pair	4 pair
Roller Bandage, 2" × 4 yd	1	2
Roller Bandage, 4" × 4 yd	—	1
Scissors	1	1
Splint, 4" × 24"	—	1
Sterile Pad, 3" × 3"	2	4
Tourniquet, 1" wide	—	1
Trauma Pad, 5" × 9"	2	4
Triangular Bandage, 40" × 40" × 56"	1	2

Also introduced were 4 types of kits, based on usage:

Type I—for use in stationary indoor applications.
Type II—for use in portable indoor applications.
Type III—for portable use in mobile indoor and/or outdoor settings.
Type IV—for portable use in mobile industries and/or outdoor applications.

Consider the complexity of your environment and levels of hazard to determine the right kit for your facility. Look to our selection to help you meet new requirements.

Be Prepared with Eyewash Stations!

In the event of a workplace eye emergency, eyewash stations are critical to minimizing eye damage.

Eyewash stations are required by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) in any workplace where hazardous or corrosive materials are a risk for workers. Guidelines set by the American National Standards Institute (ANSI) are generally considered good rules to follow:

- Eyewash stations must be close enough for workers to reach in ten seconds.
- An eyewash station needs to be found easily in an emergency.
- Eyewash stations must be capable of maintaining flows of 0.4 gallons per minute for up to 15 minutes.
- The location of the station must be on the same level as the hazard, with nothing blocking the way.

Keep Your Eyes Safe and Protected!

Personal protective eyewear, such as goggles and safety glasses, must be used in a workplace where an eye hazard exists.

Having the right protective eyewear is critical in preventing eye-related injuries. According to the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH), each day approximately 2,000 U.S. workers sustain an eye injury on the job that requires medical treatment. A third of these are treated in hospital ERs, with more than 100 resulting in a day or more of lost work. The majority of injuries occur because of small particles or objects striking or abrading the eye.

When selecting eye protection, consider your specific work situation and the nature of hazards at your workplace. Choose safety glasses or goggles that offer appropriate coverage and the right fit, and allow for sufficient peripheral vision.

Work Safe and Protect Your Hearing

The National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) reports that each year, approximately 30 million workers are exposed to noise levels high enough to cause irreversible hearing loss.

Since 2004, the Bureau of Labor Statistics has reported that nearly 125,000 workers have suffered significant, permanent hearing loss. The best way to reduce noise in the workplace is to choose the right hearing protection device for you and your work environment. Make sure to look for the Noise Reduction Rate (NRR), a measurement that classifies the devices' ability to reduce noise levels, given in decibels (dB) — the higher the number, the greater the potential for noise reduction.

Breathe Safely on the Job!

An estimated five million workers are required to wear respirators in 1.3 million workplaces throughout the United States.

Respirators protect against inhaling dangerous substances, such as chemicals and infectious particles, which can cause illness, lung impairment, disease or even death.

The National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) collaborates with industry and government partners to develop respirator standards in accordance with government regulations. Look for NIOSH approval labels on respirators to ensure your safety and protection.

Be Prepared for a Fire Emergency!

Having a fire prevention program in place is crucial for employee safety and facility compliance.

On an average day, over 200 fires occur in U.S. workplaces, according to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA), and more than 5,000 people are injured annually in explosions and fires on the job. The best way to ensure the safety of your workforce is through fire prevention and preparation.

- OSHA requires employers to provide proper exits, firefighting equipment, emergency plans and employee training to prevent fire deaths and injuries in the workplace.
- Having an extinguisher within reach can be the difference between minor damage and catastrophe, or in extreme cases, life and death.
- Make sure to frequently inspect and maintain the condition of extinguishers, smoke alarms and any other fire safety equipment.

Keep extinguishers within reach to safeguard your workplace, assets and employees!

DID YOU KNOW?

According to the National Safety Council, a worker is injured on the job every seven seconds. Be prepared with critical gear and equipment to keep workers safe. Personal protection such as hard hats greatly reduce the risk of seriously being hurt, while safety vests and tape provide an immediate visual alert to hazardous situations.
